BED OF MUD LIFE CUSHION.

Johnson, of Mt. Pleasant township, peeped through the window and saw a man at a stovepipe-hole in the floor of his upper room. He later testified before Justice Lindsay that he saw a man with a gun, and Young killing Mrs. Holderman in the kitchen. Johnson, he called to them, and they parted.

Mrs. Holderman wisely got a warrant for Young's arrest, and he was taken to jail. Young gallantly agreed on oath that hers was the true version of the offense.

The coroner's inquest strongly hinted that "the case might be settled" and it was, upon payment of $250, and everything seemed happy.

SQUIRREL HOLDS TROLLEY.
Little Beast Blocks Travel on Busy Washington Avenue.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—A gray squirrel and a kind-hearted motorman yesterday blocked traffic for ten minutes in busy Connecticut Avenue. The squirrel found a bus between the car tracks, stopped, dug it out and sat down to eat it. The clanging of the bell did not move him, and the motorman, seeing that the little animal would be killed, stopped his car and went out to "shoo" him off.

The committee was given the bill presented to make the daisy the official flower and to designate it as the "Daisy Day," and it was assigned to a subcommittee, composed of Messrs. Jackson, Wayne, Post, and Washington.

When a girl visitor in a mine drilled a tin top rock, she fell and was killed. The tin top rock was a piece of tin that had been used for a long time and was very hard. EAST WEARIES CAPTAIN BILL.

Ranger McDonald, Wilson's Bodyguard, Going Back to Texas.

Washington, D. C., March 11.—Captain "Bill" McDonald, of Texas, personal bodyguard for President Wilson during the days after the Baltimore convention and before the election, is going back to Texas. He is tired of the hectic East, and its trappings and courtesies have palled upon him. Captain Bill was at the White House yesterday.

"I'm going back to Texas," he said in mournful tones. "I don't like these here mines you get around Lari alone. I've gottin' tired and I want to plant them in an acre or so of good ground."

HIS WILL ON HIS SHOULDER.

A Miner Has It Tattened on Him to Prevent His Loss

Los Angeles, March 6.—Probably the oddest will ever drawn by man is that of Harry Kohnman, a miner from San Bernardino County, who has been dead since last August.

The will was found after his death in a box containing a number of letters and other papers. It was written in a very simple, direct manner, and contained the following provisions:

I, Harry Kohnman, do hereby give and bequeath unto my wife, Mary Kohnman, all of my real and personal estate, excepting and reserving unto myself the sum of one hundred dollars, which I desire to be paid to my son, Harry Kohnman, upon his reaching the age of twenty-one years.

I further give and bequeath unto my daughter, Mary Kohnman, the sum of fifty dollars, which I desire to be paid to her upon her reaching the age of sixteen years.

I also give and bequeath unto my son-in-law, John Kohnman, the sum of fifty dollars, which I desire to be paid to him upon his reaching the age of twenty-one years.

I hereby appoint my wife, Mary Kohnman, as executrix of this my last will and testament.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal at San Bernardino, California, this first day of August, A.D. 1907.

Harry Kohnman

The will was signed and sealed by Harry Kohnman in the presence of three witnesses, who were sworn to its validity before a justice of the peace.

The will was filed for record in the county clerk's office on March 6, 1908.

The executor of the will, Mary Kohnman, has since that time been administering the estate of her late husband, and has paid the sums of money provided for in the will to her children and son-in-law.

The will is now on file in the county clerk's office, and is open to the inspection of anyone who may wish to see it.

The will is a curious document, and is worthy of being preserved as a relic of the past.

It shows the simplicity of mind and the directness of purpose of the testator, and is a valuable contribution to the history of mining in California.

It is a pity that the will was not discovered earlier, and that the executor had to wait so long before she could begin to administer the estate.

But whatever the reasons may be, the will remains a unique document, and a valuable addition to the collection of mining relics in California.

It is a reminder of the fact that even the most ordinary of men can leave behind them a legacy of wisdom and foresight.

And it is a lesson to us all, that we should take care to make our wills, and to provide for our families in the best way possible.

For in the end, it is the only way to ensure that our loved ones are taken care of, and that our property goes to those who deserve it.

So let us learn from the example of Harry Kohnman, and let us make our wills, and let us live our lives wisely and well.

For in the end, that is the only way to true happiness and success.
